100 Spencer Street | Rockhampton QLD Australia

What better way to enjoy the best tropical climate Queensland has to offer than by exploring the Rockhampton Zoo and heritage listed Botanic Gardens.

Originally developed as a facility for trialling plants for their commercial potential, the Gardens retain their historical significance with a number of iconic plantings including the 150 year old canopy of Banyan figs and avenue of Bunya pines. The rich, colourful history of the gardens expands to the tranquil Japanese Gardens, designed by leading Japanese landscape designer the late Kenzo Ogata, as part of a Treaty of Friendship signed after World War II.

Nestled within the Botanic Gardens, you'll find Rockhampton Zoo where you can discover more than 60 species of native and exotic animals including chimpanzees and cassowaries, dingoes and otters, or crocodiles and koalas and many more.
